Comments

Mitchell Hamline School of Law Students come from a wide variety of diverse professional and personal backgrounds. In addition to the presented demographics, other unique attributes of our student body include that approximately half of our student body are part-time students who work in addition to going to law school and have established professional careers in many interesting areas of business, health, technology, government, public service, and much more. Another unique attribute of Mitchell Hamline is that we draw students from across the entire United States and internationally. While we are physically located in the Midwest region, our students come from all 50 states as well as U.S. Territories and international locations.

Other Interview Programs

Diversity Interview Programs

Mitchell Hamline participates in Twin Cities Diversity in Practice and other diversity interview programs with employers and organizations both in Minnesota and outside of it.

For Employers who do not interview students on-campus, will you:

send, upon request, one package containing resumes/transcripts? Yes post a notice directing students to apply directly to employer? Yes

Employers can submit job listings and other information to careers@mitchellhamline.edu. Our standard posting timeline is 30 days on Symplicity, but we will post for longer if the employer requests. We can encourage applications by a specific end date or on a rolling basis.

Are employers permitted to prescreen? Yes

First Year Students

First year students are eligible for all work opportunities. First year students are only eligible for externships (for academic credit) after the completion of their first year of law school. We encourage employers to keep contact with first-year students to a minimum in the first (fall) semester of law school to allow first-year students to settle in and be successful with their academics. We do not, however, prohibit contact with first-year students or any students before a certain date. We post job notices at any time during the traditional school year and into the summer.
